Future of Frisco Railway an Interesting Problem.

St. Louis, May 29 .- The future of the terest in St. Louis, which is the home of the company. The opinion prevails that there will be a reorganization by those who have been in control of the property, although there are other views. Men who look far into such problems express the belief that some strong railway system like the Pennsyl-Frisco railroad is a question of great instrong railway system like the Pennsylvania which wants a foothold in the west, or the Santa Fe, which, it is said. has had an eye on St. Louis a long time, will buy the Frisco. No authorized talk is heard in that direction, but it is a prediction which gives St. Louis people food for thought.

There has been much speculation in the last few years about possible plans of the Santa Fe to reach St. Louis, New Orleans and other southern territory toward the east, and this realization be through the Frisco receiver-Santa Fe officials have never affirmed or denied the report that they expect to reach out for business in that section. This, however, does not mean much, for Santa Fe officials do not talk till they get ready to act.

Santa Fe officials in Topeka say they have heard nothing about the re-port from St. Louis. Reliable news of that character, they say, would come that character, they say, would come from Chicago, headquarters of the ex-

PRESIDENT RIPLEY HOPEFUL. Sees Signs of Letup in Fight Against Chicago, May 29.—E. P. Ripley, Santa Fe railroad, is distrustful of the country's political future. There certain signs which make him hopeful that the headlong course will be stopped, but he is far from sure.

The house and senate, in his view, are dangerously radical. President

ATCHISON SERVICE GOOD.

Santa Fe Does Not Contemplate Motor Service to St. Joe.

The Atchison Champion yesterday printed this paragraph: "Will the Santa Fe establish motor car service on its line between Atchison and Topeka, and Atchison and St. Joseph Those who have been watching movements of the traffic end of road lately profess to believe it will." Advice from the Santa Fe general officers here is that the company does not contemplate the service mentioned. The Santa Fe now has two pas-senger trains dally each way between Topeka and St. Joseph, which take care of the traffic. These trains carry shoppers to and from the three town named, with abundance of time for trading purposes.

"The present service is entirely sat isfactory to the traveling public, to the merchants of the towns," Santa Fe official said, when asked about the story.

A DEMONSTRATION TRAIN ECHO. Colonel Savage Has Request for Picture of Famous Outfit. Colonel F. S. Savage, advertising agent of the Santa Fe railway yesterday received a request from a student in Virginia for a picture of the Santa Fe's famous demonstration train, which ran over the system two years ago.

The train was one of the greatest exploitation stunts ever pulled off in any country. More than 2000 col-umns of newspaper notices were printed about the train, and it was estimated that 1,500,000 people saw it. The Santa Fe gave away 750,000 souvenir pictures of the train, and the supply was practically exhausted a year ago. However, Colonel Savage managed to dig up a copy for his Virginia correspondent. The Santa Fe ran the demonstration ain to show the progress of railroading in thirty years.

COMMON SENSE AND TOBACCO

ing to Excess Should Quit.

In the rush of modern life, where the tendency is to develop the neurotic constitution, tobacco may be regarded, in my opinion, as a kind of saving clause in the history of modern man But there is always just this much about the use of tobacco-common sense must be well mixed with it. In other words, the man who finds he is smoking to excess and doesn't stop, lacks common sense. The boy who begins smoking is really old enough to know that it huris him and will hurt him until he has reached maturity, consequently he lacks common sense if he continues to smoke during the days of his body and mind buildtobacco acts in youth by checking the due nutrition of the frame. The adult, on the other hand, may ing it in excess. In the first case, the man should be the judge of his own requirements in the way of toown requirements in the way of to-bacco consumption. If the weed in-terferes with his health or comfort, he will be acting only a common-sense part by renouncing its use alto-gether. There is in this case no mid-dle course. While for the vast ma-jority of men smoking presents itself as a habit which has for its outcome the production of a soothing and calming influence, there are individ-uals upon whom it acts either with poisonous effect, or at least may be

There is first disturbance of digestion, then eye symptoms may be prevalent, end-ing in temporary loss of sight or tobacco amaurosis, as it is professionally termed. The further action of totermed. The further action of to-bacco is seen in irregularity of the action of the heart, producing what medical men call "smoker's heart." The pulse is irregular and the heart's action enfeebled, with the result that the general nutrition of the body becalcitrant Democratic senators down bility of the nervous system due to the depression induced by the excess will also appear, and the otherwise beneficial effect of tobacco is thus will also appear, and the otherwise beneficial effect of tobacco is thus converted into a positive evil. The remedy for this state of matters is, of course, obvious. The doctor will advise complete renunciation of to-bacco, he will probably order tonics and if the individual is completely run down, change of air will also be pr

I may here refer to one phase of the tobacco question, which of late years has come prominently into view. I allude to the habit of cigarette smoking at large, and to the indulgence by women of this form of enjoyment. The cigarette is no doubt convenient and handy method of enjoying a whiff, but it is an insidi-ous form of tobacco smoking, see-ing that the consumption of cigarettes by the ordinary smoker per day tends, as regards the amount of tobacco and the effects thereby induced to exthe effects thereby induced to ex-ceed both phases as witnessed in the average man who smokes pipe or cigar.

There are many men who appear to smoke digarettes from morning to night, and even the dinner table is not sacred from tobacco fumes. In addition to the danger of excess thus induced, we have to take into consideration the facts of inhaling the fumes of the paper and the results of this feature of cigarette smoking on the throat. My contention is that there is greater danger of injurious excess in the matter of cigarette habit than where tobacco is consumed in pipe or cigars.

On women one may well be convinced that the effects of tobacco are much more easily produced than in men. The woman's nervous system is, speaking generally, of a more highly strung character than that of highly strung character than that of the men. She is more active in thought, more intuitive, more keen in her perceptions than her lord and master, and, physiologically speaking. ier nervous system is therefore mor liable to develop the unstable state. Cigarette smoking by women may physiologically not whatever society manners or the canons of good taste may have to say to the practice, but medical men know of the irritable hearts and like ymptoms being the inevitable of even moderate indulgence in to-bacco by many women.

Arguments here seem to lie in the direction of advising women to be more than careful of the tobacco habit. It is a feature of their nervous constitution that the effects engendered in them are of a much more decided character than in the oppo-site sex.—New York American.
